

“Our Inward Freedom”:
an exploration of the spiritual meaning of Milton’s PARADISE LOST

*“For good unknown, sure is not had, or had
And yet unknown, is as not had at all.
In plain then, what forbids he but to know,
Forbids us good, forbids us to be wise?” (Book IX)*

A one-day course – led by Peter Brennan.

SUNDAY, JULY 22, 10:30 – 4:30

“His scholarship is impeccable and his understanding of his subjects deep. I have no hesitation in recommending him.”

– Z’ev ben Shimon Halevi

“Brennan is a passionate, exciting teacher and I can’t recommend his courses highly enough.” – Daily Mail

Milton’s epic poem continues to excite fascination and controversy, confronting as it does the existence of evil in a divinely ordained world. In this course, we shall read and discuss several crucial passages in Paradise Lost in order to illuminate the practical contemporary spiritual significance of this cosmic work.

Copies will be provided of all extracts to be studied.
